PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

UPPER LEVELS

THERE is no better evidence of America's idealism, of her faith in democracy and her belief that humanity can make conscious and continuous progress than her more than four-score of publicly supported colleges and universities. Many of these institutions are supported jointly by State and Nation. Our University is most fortunate to be one of those receiving this joint support.

Ready as Nevada's people have always been to support, even at great sacrifice, every means of education, it is very doubtful if our University would yet have come into being without the generous national proffer of university land grants and of substantial annual aids. Very certain it is that, even if started, Nevada's university, without Federal aid, would have had a most meager existence and would have been so handicapped as to be utterly unable to function as the real University it is. Clear evidence of the truth of this statement is the fact that, even in these latter days of Nevada's increased wealth and population, Federal annual aids to the University total in value appreciably more than one-half as much as its income from the State.

Every student of our University, then, is a clear debtor for his university opportunity both to the State and to the Nation. There is but one way to pay these debts. Each student must, during his years on this campus, strive earnestly to develop into a useful citizen of state and nation, into a broad-guage Nevadan and American, who is both able and eager to do his part to make his State and his Nation still greater in the service of mankind than they have been. To this end, every campus activity, every student organization, should be kept on the higher levels. Through such upper level activities in art and in science, in unselfishness and in service, in loyalty to high ideals and in sacrifice for great ends and through such upper level activities alone, has every real advance been made in the long and rising history of the race.

If, therefore, our campus is to make real progress, if our individual students are to grow most in mind, in character and in craftsmanship strengths, each student and each campus organization must deliberately and always make the higher level choices. Campus customs and traditions must satisfy upper level tests. In so far as they may be on lower levels of ugliness, of vulgarity or of brutality, traditions should be altered or annulled. Only those traditions should abide which radiate friendliness and service, which respect fully both the laws of State and of Nation and the rights of all persons to their own self-respect and to complete freedom from interference or dictation by others so long as they have due regard for the like rights of others.

When every campus activity and every campus custom has been tested and trued to upper level alignment, then will the student body have proved itself collegiate in true sense, then will individual students make steady and rapid growth toward the full stature of achieving Americans and then will both State and Nation have full reason to be glad that they have been and are jointly maintaining this University.

ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

THE organization through which student government operates is known as the Associated Students of the University of Nevada. All students automatically become members upon completion of registration, by the payment of a fee of $6.60 for the first semester and $10.60 for the second semester. These fees cover all athletic dues, publication charges and class apportionments. Exceptional co-operation of all the members has placed this organization on a high level with similar organizations in other colleges.

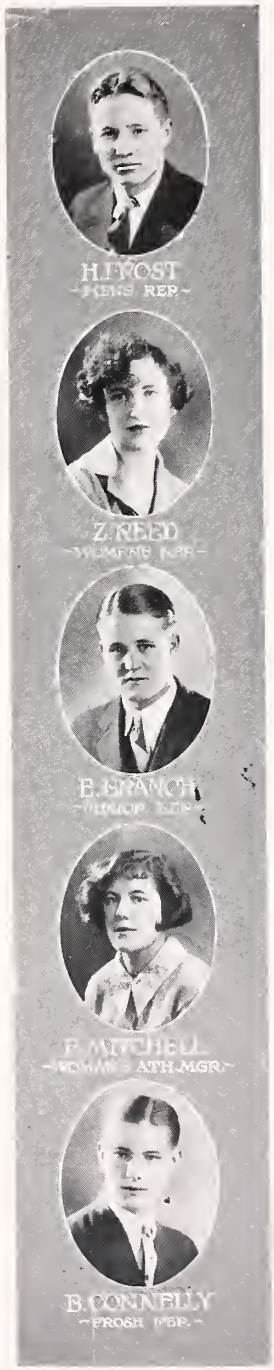

Effective sub-organizations under the Associated Students have given strength to the larger organization, and have made it possible to carry on successfully many important undertakings.

One of these organizations is the governing body, and the one which guides student affairs. The Executive Committee is composed of:

PROCTOR HUG President
JACK GILLBERG Vice-President
FLORENCE BENOIT Secretary
LAWRENCE BAKER Treasurer
EMORY BRANCH Junior Representative
BRUCE CONNELLY Sophomore Representative
ELSIE MITCHELL Women's Athletic Manager

The Finance Control Committee, which controls all expenditures, is composed of:

R. C. THOMPSON Chairman
CHAS. HASEMAN Faculty Advisor
PROCTOR HUG President
ZELDA REED Women's Representative
HARRY FROST Men's Representative
J. E. MARTIE Athletic Director
LAWRENCE BAKER Treasurer
CLARENCE THORNTON Athletic Manager

Several years ago the Finance Committee was instituted and has proven itself one of the worthiest departments of the organization. Management of funds has been put in capable hands, and efficient and fair financing has resulted. The last few years have witnessed an unusual prosperity and the student body has an annual turnover of over $30,000.

By means of an efficient upperclass committee, discipline has become a small problem and the Faculty Student Affairs Committee has had fewer cases to handle each year. Those on the upperclass committee are: Proctor Hug, Tom Roach, Jack Gillberg, Clarence Thornton, Erle Hendricksen and Harry Frost.

Several important committees were appointed during the year. The Home-Coming Day Committee was composed of: Bert Spencer, John Cahlan, Ernest Brooks, Ian Mensinger, Wayne Hinckley, Florence Hunley and Helen Adamson.

The revision of the Constitution, which has proved inadequate in meeting many problems which have arisen in the past, was undertaken by a committee composed of Bill Anderson, Evalyn Nelson, Roy Whitacre and Prof. Hartman.

Every department of the organization should be complimented on their efficiency and the excellent spirit in carrying on their work. President Hug and the other officers deserve special commendation for their earnest effort and their success in making this year one of advancement in all ways.

R. O. T. C. FACULTY

MILITARY DEPARTMENT

UNIVERSITY is the logical place to train leaders for every field in our national life, whether it be military or industrial. The World War taught the United States Government that it did not have a sufficient number of officers to organize and train as large an army as is necessary in times of national emergencies. They also found that officers could not be trained in a short time.

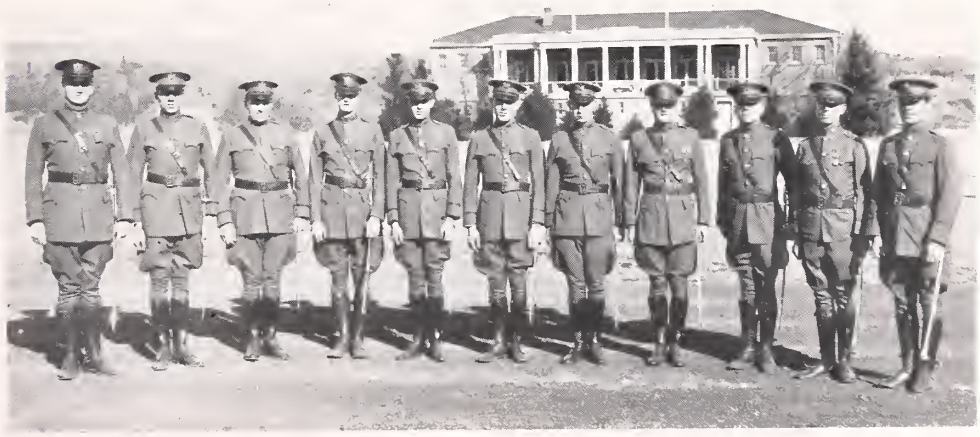

THE R. O. T. C.

THE RIFLE TEAM

Profiting by the experiences of the World War, the Government devised a national defense scheme, which provided for the training of young men in college. These men are placed in the organized reserve, where they can be called upon at any time. The Military Department at the University of Nevada is probably the oldest department in the school. Under the command of Colonel John P. Ryan and Captain Luther Johnson, the department is instructing the University men in the science of war. Sergeant E. E. Vaughn is an instructor in the department.

After two years required work the student may take up the advanced work and receive his commission in the regular army. The advanced students are those who are recommended by the heads of the department, as possessing excellent qualities of leadership. The advanced students have formed an officers' club, to inculcate the spirit of the department into the underclassmen and to the community. The following are active members: Cadet Major George Cooley, Cadet Captains E. S. Brown, J. R. Bonner, W. Gritton, Cadet Lieutenants F. M. Ball, R. Coleman, Skinner, Heich, J. Molina, Clays and Hagmeyer.

OFFICERS' CLUB

Nevada also has its rifle team, which competes with teams throughout the Ninth Corps area. The student body gives awards to those making either the men's or women's rifle teams. There are many trophies offered the team if it can make a sufficiently high score in intercollegiate competition. By the large number of men and women who are competing for places on the teams, the teams can be assured a profitable season. Captain Johnson and Sergeant Vaughn are coaching the teams.

Every Friday the cadet battalion conducts a battalion parade on Mackay Field, the success of these parades depending to a large measure upon the co-operation of the military band, which is conducted by Captain Kent.

College Year

THE SOPH-FROSH FIGHTS

POSTER RUSH

THE POSTER

WAR broke out between sophomores and freshmen at the close of registration in the form of the annual Poster Rush in which the two underclasses each year vie for supremacy.

The freshmen were given the Campus to protect against sophomore posters, while in turn the sophomores were busy trying to take the Campus by storm or strategy in the endeavor to put down their posters proclaiming their superiority over the new class.

The customary three nights were allowed the sophomores in which to lay their posters down, the rules giving them until six o'clock in the morning to complete their task.

Several minor battles saw the sophomores escorted to nearby hills by the freshmen, but the setback was only temporary. The weary freshmen were attacked by the vanguard of the sophomore army at a quarter to six the first morning, and succeeded in putting down enough posters to be proclaimed victorious by the upperclass committee which sponsored the rush.

CANE RUSH

Mackay Field was the battle scene of the second struggle between sophomores and freshmen—the Cane Rush.

Two canes were held by the sophomores. Victory was theirs if they were able to put one of them over the goal line. The freshmen were to defend the goal from the sophomores until the time limit of ten minutes would elapse, the victory to go to the freshmen if they succeeded in keeping the cane from being carried across the goal line.

At the sharp staccato of the gun the two classes, lined up at opposite ends of the field, rushed en mass towards each other. The sophomore line separated at midfield into two divisions. With perfect interference and the speedy running of Vernon Cantlon, a sophomore, one cane was put over the goal line in less than sixteen seconds; the other cane, carried by Alden McCullom, followed the first one to victory within a few seconds.

Victorious in both their freshmen and sophomore years, the right to wear derbies and white vests and to carry canes was the traditional reward won by the sophomore class for their two victorious Cane Rushes. The class of '28 is the first class since '24 to gain the coveted reward.

TUG-OF-WAR

Hostilities ceased with the tug-of-war across Manzanita Lake. A long, heavy rope stretched across the lake was manned by an even number of picked men from each class. After a slow, even pull the freshmen finally gave ground and were doused in the cold waters of the lake, thereby adding another victory to the sophomore crown.

JUST BEFORE SUN-UP AT THE POSTER RUSH

RALLIES

FINE spirit was displayed in the rallies held at the University the past year, there being one held preparatory to practically every football contest of the season. On September 25, the day before the St. Ignatius game, a group of several hundred students assembled at Manzanita Hall, and with characteristic spirit serpentined through the busness district, stopping for demonstrations and yells at the corner of Fourth and Virginia streets. From there the line proceeded to the gym, where the Soph-Frosh get-together dance was held.

The following week on Thursday the best supported rally of the year was held to send the team off to its annual contest with the Golden Bear. Approximately four hundred boosting students comprised a parade that stopped traffic in the down-town thoroughfares for over twenty minutes. For some time after the gathering had dispersed, scattered groups of students and civilians could be seen on the streets "talking it up."

Supplementing another down-town parade the night before the College of the Pacific game, the rally was held in the auditorium, and many unique and pep-inviting stunts were featured. Two girls' teams staged a mock football game, the contestants of which could have overwhelmed any varsity in the country. Coach Shaw, in a brief speech, stressed how important it was for the student body to back the team, and in conclusion predicted victory for the Wolves the next day. In a mock ceremony staged by the Whelps, an organization that was largely responsible for arranging the rallies, Earl Worden, as Miss Defeat, was united in wedlock to Mr. College of the Pacific. Yell practice was held under the direction of Bill Clinch, with Bob Stewart and Marion Green as assistants. With the last strain of the hymn, the rally came to a close.

On the Thursday before Homecoming Day, the honored bonfire rally was held. Its purpose being to welcome the returning grads, and to stimulate interest in the events of the next two days, including the annual football game with Santa Clara. All day Frosh could be seen lugging the essential boxes, and by nightfall a large stack was set for the coming event. Each campus organization was invited to put on a stunt, and a varied and entertaining program was enjoyed by the crowd. In his address, President Clark reviewed the fast closing football season, and pled for a more unified support for our fighting varsity. Other speeches were made by Student Body President Hug, Coach Shaw, Assistant Coach Phelan, and Varsity Captain Tom Roach. The usual support of the rally was demonstrated by the volume of the yells which Clinch, Green and Stewart drew from the assembled students.

Short rallies were held to send the team off to the St. Mary's, Davis, and Arizona games. In each instance students gathered at the depot, where yells and brief speeches made up the program. The rallies held at the trains this year were well supported, and undoubtedly contributed much to the fight of the team.

YELL LEADERS

HOMECOMING DAY

PRESIDENT CLARK STARTS THE HORSESHOE TOURNAMENT

THE sixth annual Homecoming Day was held this year on October 29, 30 and 31. With attendance at a high mark for the "Big Day," the festivities were not lacking for want of spectators and old grads.

One of the biggest and best rallies of the year opened the program. A huge bonfire, a "Welcome Home" sign, stunts with plenty of spice, good snappy talks and yells that exhibited more pep and vigor than shown throughout the rest of the rally season, constituted a "full evening."

The proportions of the celebration assumed those of a big holiday. A parade through the streets of Reno was participated in by several campus organizations, the Washoe County Potato and Apple Show, and displays of the products of various Nevada producers.

One of the main attractions was the horseshoe pitching contest staged by the Aggies. The followers of barnyard golf engaged in a stiff, hotly contested match, and one by one the enthusiasts were eliminated. The contest narrowed down to the two teams of Burr-Goodale and Robison-Watson in which the latter team emerged winners and were awarded silver medals for their efforts.

The football game, Nevada vs. Santa Clara, and the Aggie dance closed one of the best Homecoming Day programs that has been given yet.

ENGINEERS' DAY

Hi there, waiter, steam more beers,
We're a bunch of engineers.
Bevel gears. Devil gears.
What th' hell? Engineers!

It is this yell with its much maligned word that serves as a perpetual bond of good fellowship between the engineering students on the campus, who come forth each year with one of the most notable of the Hill's celebrations, namely, Engineers' Day.

Last year the event was held on Saturday, March 14th. On the afternoon of the thirteenth the long program began with a parade. Ancient engine-driven vehicles, machinery demonstrations, floats representing various organizations, and seemingly no end of unique wheel-mounted contraptions rolled down Virginia Street.

On Saturday morning the events began bright and early. Machinery exhibits and laboratory demonstrations were first opened to the public. The little locomotive that occupies such a prominent position in the electrical building was running under full pressure, and with every hiss of steam seemed to voice support of the engineers.

The climax to a successful day came with the hard times dance in the evening. In order to gain admittance the only credentials were old clothes and a smile.

MACKAY DAY

Each year in the observance of Mackay Day the University pays tribute to its greatest benefactor, Clarence W. Mackay.

Last year the day was celebrated on Saturday, April 4th, following the annual campus clean-up and the re-cindering of the outdoor track. The program began with a luncheon held in the gym at noon. Bertha Aikin presided as toastmistress of the gathering. The spirit of the day was best symbolized at this time by the informal yells and carefree demonstrations indulged in by those present. President Clark reviewed the history of the occasion in a brief address. Professor R. C. Thompson and A. D. Ayres followed with short talks. Following the addresses, entertainment was furnished by Eddie Stirm's orchestra and other entertainers.

Commencing the program for the afternoon nominations for Student Body offices held chief interest. After this the Editor of the Artemisia announced that the annuals were ready for distribution and copies could be secured any time during the day. The books received their share of attention, and many found in them a means of spending the remainder of the afternoon. At three o'clock the annual inter-class track meet was held. The meet was won by the Sophomores, who nosed out the Frosh by two points.

In the evening the Block N Society entertained at a get-together dance held in the gym. Everyone seemed to bring the pervading spirit of the day, and a more fitting climax to the occasion would have been difficult to imagine.

In the observance of Mackay Day the University upholds one of its greatest traditions, and its whole-hearted, informal celebration is a fit tribute to "the man with the upturned face."

RE-CINDERING THE TRACK ON WORK DAY

INITIATIONS

A NUMBER of student clubs on the Hill choose a form of annual public initiation for their prospective members that is intended to be as embarrassing for the latter and as entertaining for the campus as possible.

The Sundowners began the season by appearing in the regalia of "Knights of the Road," or in common parlance, "tramps," the organization being originally founded on a platform of free transportation. The new members played their roles naturally and unconcerned, seeming to enjoy the proffered "hand-outs" and jibes that came from all sides.

Following the Sundowners the prospectors of the Crucible Club appeared. This organization is composed of the mining students on the Hill, and they chose a typical character of their profession to be imitated by the initiates. High-top rubber boots, prospecting picks, concentrating pans, packs, beards, and all the other essential details adorned the precious mineral seekers. No new mines were reported to have been discovered, but an inexhaustible supply of witty remarks was always in evidence to help the strugglers along.

Coming next was the initiation of Delta Alpha Epsilon, woman's honor English society, who treated the campus to general razzing in the form of an annual scandal show. This year the performance was staged under the disguise of a basketball game played from the bleachers. "Campus cases," professors, students and Hill celebrities all shared the fruits of frank feminine criticism.

COFFIN AND KEYS RUNNING

"A little child shall lead them."

ANNOUNCING to the assembled multitude that the day of repentance and the end of the world was at hand, eight Coffin and Keys initiates greeted with wild acclaim the fact that they were the favored few to remain and populate the earth. Then as the fires became too hot for mortal forbearance the "Mystic Eight" forsook their supplications and ran for the blue waters of the sea (nee Manzanita Lake). There the "Old Man of the Sea" awaited with transportation to the "Blossed Isle" (raft in center of lake).

End of the World is Here

Be at the Tram at 11:25

The part of the little child was ably played by "Tiny Baby" Buntin, who made the yards between the creaking library roof and the lake in nothing flat.

"Manager" Thornton arranged transportation via canoe and acted as an ass generally.

"Lion Tamer" Roach, "Tubby" Carlson, and "Silent" Gridley cleared fallen rocks from the path and swept all opposing forces from them in their true bully style.

"Buckgrabber" Walthers, running true to form, hocked his frat pin for a few sandwiches so he would have enough to eat; but "Engineer" Hicks threw a monkey wrench in the works when he refused to plot the course of the cloud for less than two ham sandwiches.

"Doc" Hendricksen was a bit late, as his secret sorrow had burned her finger on a hot rock and "Doc" had let the end of the world go for more urgent and pressing needs.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Sorority rushing teas took many forms this year, from Hindu to spring garden effects.

Grads were made to feel at home at the Aggie dance Homecoming week. The usual cider and doughnuts refreshed weary dancers.

Block "N" Society big heartedly played Santa Claus to a number of guests at their Christmas Party.

Bridge parties by Manzanita Hall Association served to entertain the campus women several times during the year.

The social calendar of 1926 began with the Pi Phi Crawl at Cairo.

Fraternity and Sorority formals and informals took many dates on the social calendar for the two semesters.

The Spider Web Prom and Rainbow Hop of last semester are to be followed this spring by an equally good Freshmen Glee and Senior Ball.

On April 10, the Whiskerino will terminate Junior Week, and, according to all reports, promises the longest beards and the best music of any Whiskerino so far.

THE SOPHOMORE HOP

SOPHOMORE HOP

Rainbow streamers, converging in a shining crystal ball, which might well have held the traditional pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, made the university gymnasium a fairy place for the guests of the class of 1928 at the first formal dance of the year—the Sophomore Hop.

Betty Sue Shaw, in a multi-colored ballet costume, interpreted a rainbow dance.

President and Mrs. Walter Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Shaw, Miss Margaret E. Mack and Miss Louise Sissa were patrons and patronesses for the evening.

JUNIOR PROM

"Will you come into my parlor," said the spider to the fly. The gymnasium was a filmy gray and rose spider web, fastened to a green lattice fence. The gay dancers at the Prom were watched from above by a huge black spider secure in his web. Tiny spiders in the lattice work completed the effect.

Diversities of the popular Charleston were demonstrated by Messrs. C. Lehmkule, Laddie Miller, R. McIlwaine and E. Warden. The placing of the orchestra in the balcony proved to be a good idea.

The patrons and patronesses were: President and Mrs. Walter Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Lehenbauer, Miss Margaret Mack and Miss Louise Sissa.

"OH SUSAN!" CAST

DRAMATICS

DRAMATICS has this last year found a bigger place on the Campus than ever before. In addition to the plays given by Campus Players, Delta Alpha Epsilon, women's English honor society, staged a one-act play; and considerable dramatic talent was shown at the annual Wolves' Frolic.

"OH, SUSAN"

"Oh, Susan," a four-act comedy, clever of plot and well acted, has been considered the best thing Campus Players have staged for several college years.

Coached by Miss Luethal Austin, the play showed in every detail the results of expert and careful coaching.

For a campus production, "Oh, Susan" had an unusually long run. On October 29 and 30, of Homecoming Week, it was given in the auditorium of the Education Building before large audiences and was well received by Fallon, Nevada, and Susanville, California, audiences later in the semester.

Marian Deremer and Harold Coffin, playing opposite each other in the lead, were actors of poise and ability, handling their lines with a professional touch.

Billy Gutteron as the "old soak" appeared on the crutches he had earned in the Cailfornia-Nevada game. The audience cheered with football enthusiasm at the first sight of Billy on his crutches.

Phyllis Poulin and Bernard White showed exceptional ability in their bowery roles, which they played with nonchalance, losing no laughs to the audience.

George Sears as the butler and Isabel Loring as the housekeeper put themselves into character with apparent ease and read their parts well.

The right touch was given to the play by Mildred Leavitt's realistic impersonation of the society matron. She was supported by Florence Benoit and Margaret Beverly, who flitted just enough for their society butterfly parts.

THE WOLVES' FROLIC

THE annual Wolves' Frolic, held November 5, 1925, at the Rialto Theater, played before a packed house. "Shadows That Merge," "Too Many Marriages," "Bar Rooms and Street Corners," and "Grand Opera" were titles of the skits presented by Campus Players.

A jazz dance by Evelyn Anderson and Ruth Streeter was clever as to steps and costumes. Coming as it did at the beginning of the Frolic, it put the audience in a mood for the performance that was to follow. Dances by Suzanne Cole, Betty Rosenberg and Betty Sue Shaw followed the opening jazz dance.

In its presentation of popular and college songs, the Men's Glee Club was one of the best acts of the evening. A solo by Bill Clinch was included in the Glee Club act.

Lucille Blake, Gertrude Reilly and Cathrine Curieux were featured in a piano act. The three pianos played simultaneously. It was an unusual feat, and very ably done. A vocal selection by Lucille Blake and an interpretation of the Charleston by Eloise Walker concluded the act.

A violin selection by Sollie Bulasky, a Charleston feature, a monologue by Jack Gregory and an act by "Red" McIllwaine were among the lighter type of skits that kept the audience entertained at the annual Wolves' Frolic.

THE SERVANTS "LISTEN IN" ON A LITTLE GOSSIP—FROM "OH SUSAN!"

THE RECTOR

"The Rector," a one-act comedy, staged by Delta Alpha Epsilon on February 5, was the first play the organization has put on for several years. Gilberta Turner played the masculine lead of the small town rector beseiged by gossiping women. The cast of the play was:

GILBERTA TURNER The Rector

AMY GOODMAN Mrs. Munsey

THE ONE-ACTS

Campus Players' annual one-act try-out plays produced in the Auditorium February 23 were well received by the Campus. Considerable dramatic ability was discovered in the try-outs, and those chosen for the four plays lived up to the expectations of the casting directors. Coached by student directors under the general direction of Luethal Austin, all of the plays went off well despite a lack of proper scenery and lighting effects.

DEBATING SEASON

PREVIOUS to the 1924-1925 season little was done to further debating at Nevada, and the few debates entered into were far from satisfactory. With the advent of Coach Miller, however, the outlook began to brighten. In spite of lack of material, the team developed by him won from the University of Utah for the first time in twenty years. This victory was greatly due to the increased platform experience acquired from the debates lost to Redlands, U. S. C., and Brigham Young. The entire squad did credit to itself in these debates, showing Nevada's real strength for the season.

This year, as a member of the Western States League, Nevada is scheduled to debate the University of Utah and the University of Southern California, both debates taking place some night of the week following March 22. Nevada will be represented by Ernest Brown and Donnell Richards against University of Southern California, at Reno, while Lena DeReemer and Emerson Wilson will oppose the University of Utah at Salt Lake. The question for both is, Resolved: "That war should be declared by popular vote of the people, except in cases of invasion or rebellion."

Brown and Richards will debate on the same question against the University of Arizona here in Reno, March 31. Besides these three debates, Manager Wilson is negotiating for a debate with a team from Sidney, Australia, the time and subject to be decided if the arrangements are completed.

The other two members of the varsity squad, both of true Nevada ability, are Carl Shelly and Ben Dieringer.

The women's debating team, consisting of Miss Lena DeReemer and Miss Zelda Reed, has one debate scheduled for April 7 with the College of the Pacific. The question is, Resolved: "That the Constitution of the United States be so amended as to give Congress the power to regulate child labor." A great amount of ability has been shown, and efforts are being made to procure further debates for them.

The newly instituted freshman team will engage in two debates with the College of the Pacific, one in Reno and one in Stockton, on the eighth of March. Other debates with the high schools of the state are being arranged for in behalf of the class of 1929, which is represented by Ernest Bingham, Mark Menke, Joe Bulasky, Solly Bulasky, Elizabeth Johnson and Mabel Connor. From these six, four will be selected for these two debates.

Of further attraction in the debating line is the high school tournament held under the auspices of Clionia and Caucus, the University debating societies. This will be held March 25, 26 and 27, at which time the various high school contests will be held.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

AN element of prophesy seemed written in the Sagebrush account of the first appearance on the men's glee club this season in the Wolves' Frolic at the Rialto Theater, November 5, for at no time have the present and future prospects of the club been brighter than this spring.

"Probably the most outstanding act of the performance," said the Sagebrush—and at Fallon, on December 14, appearing for the benefit of the Fallon Rotary Club's university scholarship fund, the performance was hailed the best ever presented by the glee club there. Campus Players very kindly assisted at this concert by sending dances and skits. The men, because of the earliness of the concert, had not yet perfected their variety features.

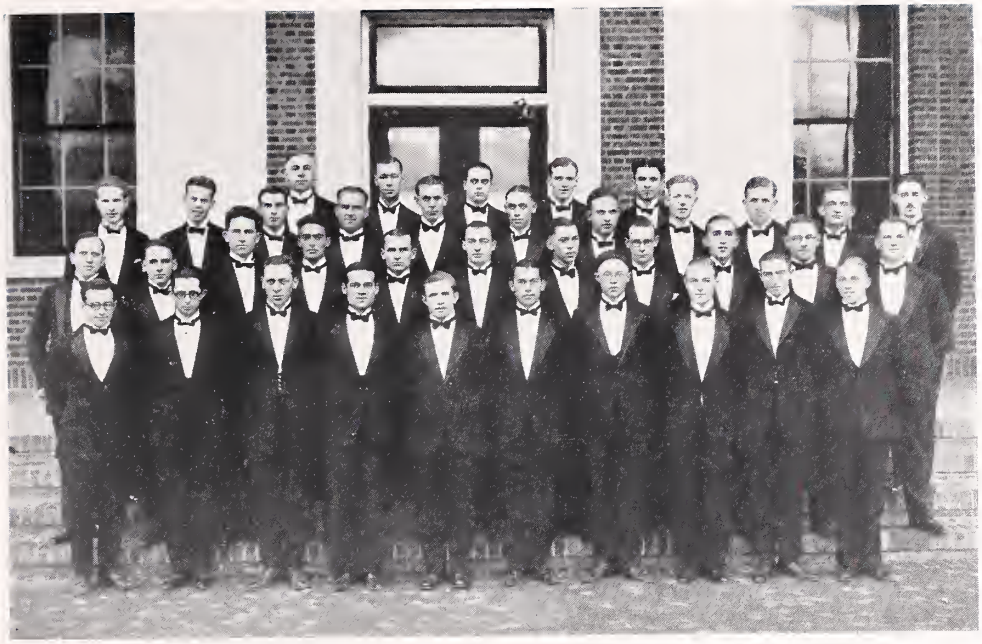

A trip to northern and eastern Nevada is again planned and arrangements are proceeding for spending Easter Week in the glow of the footlights, appearing in Lovelock, Winnemucca, Betty O'Neil, Elko, Wells, and two nights in Ely in the order named. This trip, all arranged in the spring of 1925, had to be cancelled at the last minute because of an unfortunate conflict with Mackay Day.

However, concerts were presented last season in the nearby towns of Fallon, Carson City, Sparks, Susanville, and at the Rialto Theater in Reno. But the climax of the season in point of both interest and audience remained for the closing event of the year, when on April 30 a moonlight serenade from a decorated raft on Manzanita Lake seemingly drew all Reno to listen from the surrounding lawns. The audience was a tribute to Dr. Haseman's many years of musical endeavor in Reno.

Following the success of this, the first year of Dr. Haseman's resumption as director, there has been an increasing manifestation of interest in music on the campus. Each semester the club roll has lengthened until it now has about fifty names. Since financial considerations limit the size of the club for the tours, there is an added stimulation within the group to make the trips.

Year by year the increasing number of students at the University of Nevada, from the remote sections of the state, clearly show that the spirit of Nevada is spreading, and music has been and will continue to be a moving force toward this end. Just as music plays a part in binding the student body to common loyalty and ideals, it is also a factor in bringing the scattered towns into closer touch with the University—the common meeting place of their sons and daughters. The glee club serves through song.

A concert will be given at the Rialto Theater toward the close of this semester. Tonopah, Yerington and other towns south wish the club, but it is doubtful if the additional time can be afforded from school work. Plans do call for a trip to the State Capitol, Susanville, and to close the season—another moonlight serenade from a raft on Manzanita.

Athletics

ATHLETICS

J. E. MARTIE

IF smaller schools have problems, one of them certainly is not a lack of interest in athletics—evidenced either through lack of team support, or lack of men for the teams. Nevada is no exception, and it is with pride that we should point to our high standing in the collegiate sport world, and to our own fine athletic traditions. Nevada teams are respected for their good sportsmanship as well as feared for their strength by the smaller schools, and for their capacity to do the unexpected by (and to!) the larger schools. For instance, one doesn't have to turn far back into the dimness of the past to find that Nevada made four touchdowns—in as many years—against the famous "Wonder Team" of California, something that no other team even came close to doing, and that one year Nevada played the "Wonder Team" to a tie score, an honor shared with one other college in the United States, Washington and Jefferson; this year the basketball team took two games from Stanford; this year our own Jimmy Bradshaw didn't share any honors with Red Grange in the game where the two players met, he took the honors—all of them. It is quite evident, isn't it, that Nevada has fine athletic traditions? These few instances are only the starters of a long and colorful list.

Guiding athletics and having the principal hand in shaping the athletic policy of the University is Mr. J. E. Martie—"Doc Martie"—head of the Physical Education department for men, coach of basketball and track, and trainer of the football team. In addition to this, Martie is President of the Far Western Conference, which he was instrumental in founding last spring, and which, after its first year, can be called an unqualified success. The conference is made up of an initial group of five of the smaller colleges of the Pacific Coast, and is for the express purpose of bringing schools of the same general status into closer competition and co-operation with one another, at the same time promoting more interest in athletics, raising the standards of sportsmanship, and giving the "little college" games the importance that they deserve.

Completing the staff of the Physical Education Department are Lawrence Shaw and Robert Phelan, the football coaches, and Clarence Thornton, the Senior Athletic Manager, together with his staff of sport managers and their assistants. It is to these men that the University owes thanks for the kind of teams that wear the Silver and Blue, and thanks, also, for the loyal and devoted services that they give.

THE MANAGERS

INAUGURATED in 1924, the system of management for major sports adopted by the A. S. U. N. has proved very successful. A committee consisting of R. C. Thompson, Faculty Athletic Adviser, the coach of the sport, the Senior Athletic Manager, and the captain and captain-elect, appoint a junior as manager of that particular sport. The Senior Manager is appointed from one of the Junior Managers.

MORE typically collegiate than any other sport; coming at the most favorable time of the year; and having all the elements necessary to please the martial instincts and mass superiority complexes of Young America, football—here as elsewhere—still rules as the most popular of the many games now rampant in the American colleges.

Taking this past season as a whole, it was a distinct success for Nevada. With the victories coming at the end of the season as evidence of real development under the guidance of the coaches, all things point to an exceedingly successful year next fall. Nevada won second place in the Far Western Conference.

AFTER one year as head coach at Nevada, Buck Shaw has left no doubt in the minds of students, players, and football fans as to the quality of a team that he directs, and the kind of teams Nevada may expect in the future. Finishing the season with a record of four victories and one tie game against three defeats; and possession of second place in the Far Western Conference—that is a first year showing of which any coach could well be proud.

Buck Shaw coached Nevada's line in '22 and '23, and in the second year it was his line that was the principal factor in holding California to a scoreless tie when California was the undisputed leader of collegiate football. Last year he was head coach at North Carolina State College.

COACH

PHELAN

TO those who watched the Wolf Pack backfield develop into a fast, hard-hitting, and elusive quartet; and saw the interference and the timing improve with every game, it was very evident that Assistant Coach Bob Phelan knew very well what he was doing. In dividing the duties of coaching, Shaw left the training of the ball-toters to Phelan.

For three years at Notre Dame—1919, 1920, 1921—these two men played together under the guidance of the famous Rockne—Shaw at tackle and Phelan at fullback and halfback. Last season Phelan played on the Rock Island professional team that won the professional championship of the United States.

GUTTERON CARRIES THE BALL AGAINST ST. IGNATIUS

NEVADA 7—ST. IGNATIUS 0

COMING to Reno to engage the Wolf Pack in the first game of the season, the St. Ignatius eleven fell prey to the Nevadans after a hard battle. An interested crowd of students and townspeople turned out to see what sort of a machine the 1925 Pack, under new coaches and with a new system, would prove to be. Nine veterans and two new men, Shaughnessy and Sullivan, faced the Ignatians at the opening gun.

In spite of the fact that the Notre Dame shift was a new weapon in the hands of the Wolves, the backfield and the line worked well together and the Ignatians were fighting with their backs to the wall for most of the game. Only once did the visiting team threaten to score, and that was for a short time in the third quarter when they made two or three long gains through the line but finally lost the ball on a blocked kick. Nevada scored in the second quarter. Both teams had been kicking, and in the exchange Nevada had the best of it through the long spirals of Max Allen. With Sullivan, Allen and Frost carrying the ball, Nevada gained from the fifty-yard line to the St. Ignatius two-yard line. Allen failed to score on a buck through center, but placed the ball within a few inches of the goal line. Frost then circled right end for the first touchdown of the season, and Allen drop-kicked for the extra point.

Nevada nearly scored once more in the closing minute of play, when the ball was again carried to the two-yard line, but the gun put an end to the threat.

The date of this game was September 26, 1925.

NEVADA 0—CALIFORNIA 54

PRINCIPALLY to be remembered as the game in which Billy Gutteron had his leg broken, the California game—the second of the season—proved a disastrous one for the Wolves. The Berkeley trip was made after only three weeks of practice, and the whole affair was a matter of an old and well grounded system coupled with a heavy and experienced team triumphanting over a light team playing a new system. Although the score was top-heavy this year, there is a fine chance for revenge in 1926, as the Wolves meet the Bears on November 13th—the week before the California-Stanford game—when both elevens will be at top form.

Nevada kicked off and California took the ball on her thirty-yard line, and then began a drive down the field which ended with Young fumbling on Nevada's twenty-yard line. Roach, who was working like a Trojan for the Wolves, recovered and Nevada punted out of danger. California began another march toward the Nevada goal, and Griffin finally piled over the line just before the quarter ended. California added two more touchdowns in the second quarter, principally through the fine work of Jabs at fullback.

Gutteron was hurt after making a brilliant run of seventy yards early in the third quarter. Heavily tackled by Carey, Billy's leg was broken just above the ankle. Noonan went in at quarter and did good work, but the Nevadans missed the "Little Giant," and California scored regularly until the end of the game. Captain Tom Roach was also hurt in the California encounter, and was unable to play steadily until the last games of the season.

The date of this game was October 3, 1925.

GUTTERON BREAKS THROUGH CALIFORNIA'S LINE FOR 18 YARDS

NEVADA 14—COLLEGE OF THE PACIFIC 0

SHOWING plenty of speed, plenty of fight, and plenty of football, the Wolf Pack vanquished the fast eleven from the College of the Pacific in the first conference game of the year. From the spectators' point of view this game was excellent, because the backs made numerous thrilling runs; there were several tense moments,—and plenty of forward passes.

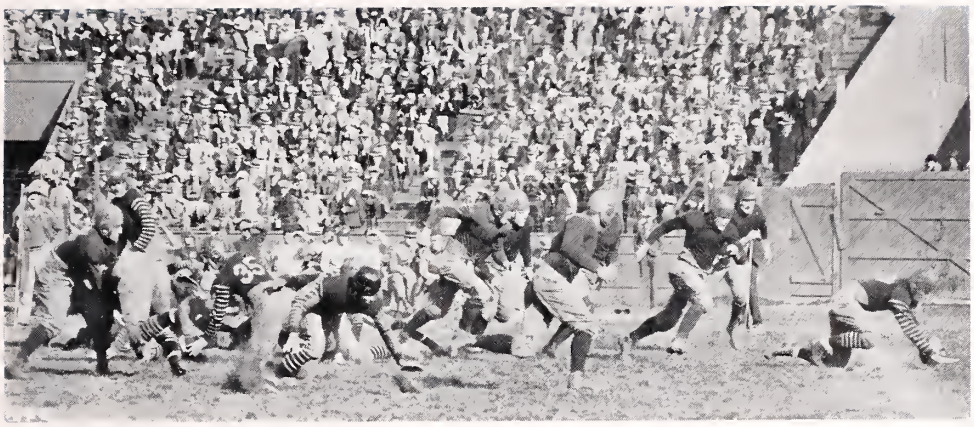

In the first quarter both elevens were wary, and the period was filled principally with guarded play and an exchange of punts. Things livened up as soon as the second quarter began, and Pacific completed a thirty-five yard forward pass to start the ball rolling. They lost the ball on downs, but made a big threat a moment later when Nevada fumbled a Pacific punt, and the Tigers recovered on the thirty-five-yard line. A long pass over the goal failed, and Nevada took the ball.

In the second half Pacific again opened up with an aerial attack, but Frost intercepted a pass and the Wolves began a drive for a touchdown. A pass, Frost to Shaughnessy, gained twenty-five yards, and after a few plays at the line another one, Lawson to Dungan, resulted in a score. Dungan started another attack a minute later when he intercepted a Pacific pass in the middle of the field. Allen smashed the line repeatedly for consistent gains. Frost again passed to Shaughnessy for twenty-five yards. By short gains, the ball was finally placed on the two-yard line, and Whitey Lawson bucked it over. There was no further scoring, although Pacific threw quantities of passes, and was a constant threat.

The date of this game was October 17, 1925.

DUNGAN RECOVERS A FUMBLE FOR NEVADA

NEVADA 0—SAINT MARY'S 35

PLAYING at Ewing Field in San Francisco, Nevada bowed to the champions of the Far Western Conference in a game marked with several thrilling plays. The Wolves missed Captain Roach, who was out of the game on account of injuries, and the strong St. Mary's team plowed through the line and tore around the ends for long gains. By defeating Nevada, and through later wins over other conference teams, St. Mary's ended the season as first champion of the new Far Western Conference.

The first quarter was full of good football, and Nevada more than held her own against the Saints. Allen and Frost bucked the ball through the line for short but consistent gains, and finally it was Nevada's first down on the St. Mary's nineteen-yard line. For a moment it seemed as though the Wolves would do the unexpected and score, but Lawson's pass was intercepted and St. Mary's ran the ball out of danger. In the second quarter the Saint's began a ferocious attack that finally resulted in a score. Following this, Balaam kicked off to O'Rourke, who crossed up the entire Wolf Pack and dashed eighty yards to the goal line. Before the half ended Saint Mary's scored once more on a forward pass.

In the third quarter Balaam's punt was blocked, and it rolled over the line, where a Saint Mary's man fell on it for a touchdown. The last counter came in the third period also, when Underhill passed to Conlan. The fourth quarter, with both teams using many substitutes, produced no more scores and no very thrilling play.

The date of this game was October 24, 1925.

FROST STARTS AROUND RIGHT ON A WIDE END RUN

NEVADA 7—SANTA CLARA 20

YALE beat the Army; Illinois beat Pennsylvania; Notre Dame beat Georgia Tech; and Santa Clara whipped Nevada—all on the thirty-first of October. In spite of the fact that a capacity crowd in the Mackay bleachers, there for Homecoming Day, yelled and yelled for the team to win, and in spite of the fact that the team tried hard to please them, the green-shirted Santa Clarans took home the bacon and had the satisfaction of breaking the famous tie that had existed between the two schools since 1922.

In the first few minutes of the game, Bundy recovered a Nevada fumble, and streaked down the field behind perfect interference for the first of the Santa Clara scores. The Wolves came back strong after this and fought hard for the rest of the half. There was no further scoring in this part of the game.

Santa Clara began a fierce and determined drive for a touchdown as soon as the second half began, and finally scored with a short pass from the twelve-yard line. Shortly after this, the Wolves launched an aerial attack that resulted almost at once in a score. Jim Bailey threw a twenty-yard pass to Shaughnessy, and the big end ran forty yards to cross the goal line. Sullivan converted and made the score at this point 13-7.

Trying desperately to overcome the six-point lead that confronted them, the Wolves tried pass after pass in a vain attempt to make another touchdown. They were either grounded or knocked down, and finally the passer fumbled the ball and it was recovered by Santa Clara on the two-yard line. Two plunges and the ball was over. There was no further scoring, and the game ended 20-7. Beaten though they were, the Nevada team at times during this game showed considerable class.

The date of this game was October 31, 1925.

NEVADA 60—FRESNO STATE TEACHERS' COLLEGE 6

GIVING a hint of what Nevada football fans may expect next year when the Notre Dame system has been thoroughly "dinged" into the Wolf Pack, the Silver and Blue ran amuck against the Fresno Teachers and buried them under an avalanche of touchdowns. It reminded the oldtimers of years gone by when Nevada teams were noted for their speed and dash, and convinced them that years like those are not far away. It seemed to remind them of two Saturdays in October, 1919, when the Wolves scored 261 points in two consecutive games on Mackay Field.

The game started with the Pack hot after a touchdown, and Frost, Allen and Sullivan running the ends and going through the Fresno line for long gains. Fresno, however, threw the proverbial monkey wrench into the machinery by intercepting a pass and being the first to score. The setback was only temporary, and the Wolves marked down five touchdowns before the half ended. The third quarter was scoreless, but the fourth saw twenty-six more points added to the count. Three of the four touchdowns were scored by Red Dungan, and the other was made after he had twisted and whirled his way through the Fresno men for numerous long gains. Max Allen converted all but three of the Pack's nine touchdowns by drop-kicking for the extra point.

One feature of the contest was the manner in which the backfield furnished interference for the man with the ball. If Dungan and Bailey starred—Bailey played a beautiful game in the first half—it was because the rest of the team was doing everything that could be expected in the way of taking out the Fresno men.

The date of this game was November 7, 1925.

NEVADA 19—CALIFORNIA AGGIES 0

GOING to Sacramento for the next to the last game of the season, the Wolf Pack, keeping up the high standard of play that it had set in the Fresno game, came out on top in an exciting game with the strong eleven from Davis Farm. The win in this contest gave the Wolves undisputed possession of second place in the new Far Western Conference. This game, with the Nevadans at the top of their form, was the best played contest in which the Silver and Blue took part.

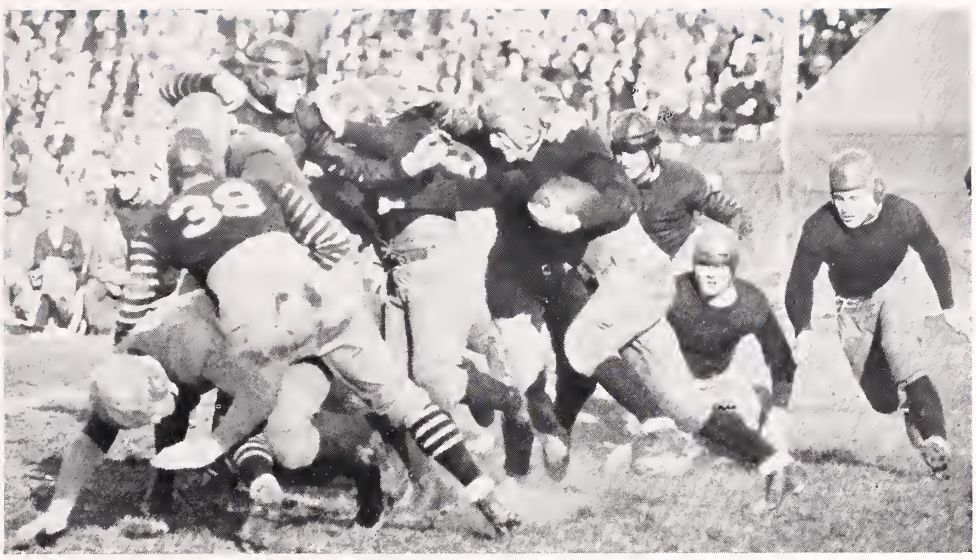

After receiving the kick-off, Nevada carried the ball down the field in an uninterrupted drive for a score. Functioning in perfect co-ordination with the backfield, the line charged the Davis men off their feet, and opened holes for Frost, Allen and Dungan. Bailey substituted for Frost in the second quarter, and executed a remarkable piece of football headwork. He was hurried in one of his passes, and unable to throw the ball to the man supposed to receive it. He spotted Bream far down the field; saw that he was eligible; fought off the Davis man, and heaved the ball forty yards to Bream, who nearly reached the goal line with it. Allen then bucked the ball over for the second score. The last score came when Sullivan intercepted a Davis pass and rambled through the Aggie team for forty yards and a counter.

Davis threatened but once during the entire game. They worked the ball to Nevada's ten-yard line, and then Tout, Aggie fullback, drove through for eight yards. Davis tried a pass over the goal line. It was incomplete and the ball went to Nevada.

The date of this game was November 14, 1925.

ROONEY OF ST. MARY'S RUNS INTO A STONE WALL

NEVADA 0—ARIZONA 0

AFTER one of the longest trips ever made by a Nevada team, the Wolves—fifteen hundred miles from home—wound up the 1925 season by playing a thrilling scoreless tie with the Arizona Wildcats. It was Arizona's "Big Game" and was played on the date designated as Homecoming Day by the southern university. On the way to Tucson, the Nevada players stopped off at Palo Alto to see the Stanford-California game.

Although the day of the game was clear, it had been raining heavily for several days before, and the field was slippery under foot. Arizona played a defensive game throughout, but Nevada lacked traction on the slimy turf and was unable to score when opportunities arose. In the third quarter the Wolves packed the ball to the two-yard line, but Arizona staved off a touchdown with some nice defensive work. Later in the game the ball was again worked to the two-yard line, but it went to the Wildcats when they held for downs. In the last quarter, Bailey threw a forty-yard pass to Allen, and Max nearly caught it over the goal line, but, wet and slippery, it oozed through its fingers, and was given to the Wildcats on the twenty-yard line.

Nevada's biggest chance to score came in the last quarter also, when the Wolves had six downs and four yards to go for a touchdown. On a wide end run, the Silver and Blue was thrown for a loss of twenty yards, and the handicap was too great to overcome. Larson played a fine game in the line, and Allen and Bailey looked exceptionally well in the backfield.

The date of this game was November 26, 1925.

WOLVES AND BEARS CLASH

FINISHING his third year on the Varsity, Captain Tom Roach will always be remembered as one of the best centers ever to dig his cleats into the turf of Mackay Field. Hard luck with injuries kept him out of some of the important games this season, but when he did play, he always came through with a lot of stellar football. There was no stopping him. Fast and heavy, he was down the field before his ends on nearly every kick, and his defensive work — blocking punts and smearing plays before they started—was everything that could be asked. He was a good player—and more than that—he was a good captain.

THE CALIFORNIA STADIUM

A MORE popular man than Max Allen, the brawny fullback of the Wolf Pack, could not have been found to lead the team in 1926,—or one who better deserved the honor. Allen has had plenty of experience. For three years running he made the all-Los Angeles High School eleven, and in his senior year at Manual Arts High he was captain of the team. The year 1926 will be Allen's third on the Nevada Varsity. He leaves nothing to be desired as a fullback, for he can punt, pass, and smash the line with the best of them; and drop-kick with accuracy.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

WITH one of the most enthusiastic turnouts for first year football that the fall has ever seen, Coach Bunny Hug turned out his usual classy team. Freshman football occupies a slightly different place at Nevada than it does at most universities. It is not so much an athletic activity in itself as it is a feeder for the varsity. Sullivan, Bream, Bailey, Shaughnessy, and Newton were all freshmen, and all members of the varsity, and while several of them played with the regulars all season, there were several, also, that graduated to the varsity from Hug's squad.

The freshmen also played some games on their own hook and came through the season with two wins and one defeat, and a total of 66 points to their opponents 12. Their first game was against the smart team of Reno High School, the state champions in that class. The freshmen finally triumphed, but it was only after a long and hard struggle. The yearlings made all of their points in the last part of the game. Moyes, Tracy, and Ford all played a good game. Sacramento Junior College proved a little too strong and heavy for the frosh, and they lost a slow game to them by the score of 12-0. In the final game, the freshmen won an overwhelming victory from Susanville High School, 47-0.

The men who made their numerals were: Ford (Capt.), Tracy, Moyes, Pugh, Lawler, Graham, Aylesworth, Wright, Raycraft, Velasquez, Irving, Brockbank, Plumbley, Newton, and Dodson.

BASKETBALL

INTEREST in basketball was aroused to a high pitch by the strenuous games of the inter-fraternity season, and a large turnout of men answered the first call to practice. There was some excellent material for Coach Martie to work with, and the team that he turned out is in every way a credit to him and to the University. Later in the winter, for some unaccountable reason, interest shown in the court game by the students fell off, and to this may be due the fact that the team did not finish in quite as strong a fashion as that in which they started. The outstanding achievement of the 1926 quintet was the two game defeat of the Stanford Cardinals.

For awhile it looked as though Nevada was going to annex the championship of the Far Western Conference, but two heartbreaking losses to St. Mary's on the home court, in two of the most exciting games ever seen here, put the Silver and Blue out of the running.

Two veterans will be lost this year, Monk Frederick and Bill Goodale. However, the outlook for a very strong team next year is bright since the other four letter men are either freshmen or sophomores. Those who made a letter are: Frederick, Goodale, Bream, Clover, Bailey, Watson, and Connelly. Other men who made the varsity, but who did not get into the required number of games, are: Morrison, Lawson, Raycraft, and Agrusa.

BASKETBALL GAMES FOR THE 1926 SEASON

FREDERICKS

JUDGING by the way in which the Wolves went after the hides of the local Northwestern Athletic Club team, all signs seemed to point to a season heavily ladened with victories, conference pennants, and so on. With two new men, Bream and Clover, holding down regular positions on the team, Watson moved from his last year's position of guard to the one at center, and the two veterans, Frederick and Goodale rounding out the five at forward and guard, respectively, Coach Martie appeared to have a team possessed of all the qualities essential to good basketball. The new men looked especially good against the N. A. C. team, and the two games resulted in two easy victories for the Wolves. The scores were 48-13 and 52-12.

The opponents of the Wolves in the next series of games were the "Southwestern Savages," the championship team from Oklahoma State Teachers' College. All over six feet tall, and with the advantage of having played together for several years, the Savages played just a little too much basketball for the less experienced Nevadans. This team had more real class than any team to play on the Nevada floor this year. Old timers were reminiscent of the famous Los Angeles Blues after seeing the Savages perform; and were confirmed in their opinions when they learned that the visitors had twice been contenders for national basketball honors. Clover, at guard, played a brilliant game and dispelled all fears in the hearts of fans who wondered if the University would ever have another one like "Spud" Harrison, who graduated last year. Goodale, at the other guard position, played a very fine game, and between the two of them, they were largely responsible for the Teachers' scores being as low as they were. In the first game, the final count was Nevada 24, Oklahoma 30; and the score of the second was 28-17 in favor of the southerners.

GOODALE

The following week Nevada went to Stockton to play the College of Pacific five—a team heralded as exceedingly strong and one likely to take the measure of the Wolves in both games. The first game was a thriller. The Wolves lead until the last five minutes of play, when the score was 19-13 in their favor. At this point, the Tigers ran into a streak of luck and caged enough baskets in rapid succession to finally down the Wolves by two points, 22-20. The second game was a repetition of the first, in that the Wolves led almost from the start, but unlike the first, they came out on the top of a 22-14 count. Clover again played a fine game, and Monk Frederick threw enough baskets to earn the high point honors.

BREAM

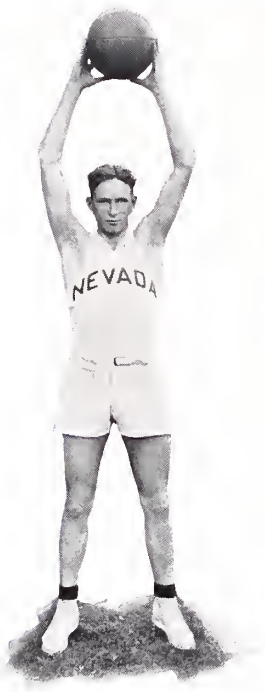

St. Ignatius invaded the home court on the following week, and lost the first game but won the second. The Friday night playing was marked by a good deal of roughness on both sides, but Nevada was on top for the whole of the game except a few brief moments at the start. The Ignatians played a tight game under the basket, and the Wolves had a little trouble in starting to put the ball through for counters. Frederick was high point man with 10 to his credit. In the second game the Wolves were so confident that they were going to win that the score went against them. The game was slower than the one the previous night. Jimmy Bailey played a hard, fast game, and made some pretty baskets. Frederick, however, again led in points scored. In the first game, the score was 31-19 in favor of Nevada, and the second game ended 26-17 for the visitors.

WATSON

The next week, on the home court, the Wolves fattened their Conference standing by taking two games from the Davis farmers. For the first time during the season the Silver and Blue played like a machine, and with excellent teamwork they swept through to a double win: 28-14 and 38-22. These two games put Nevada in the lead for the Conference title, and, as the Sagebrush remarked, "Everything is rosy." Bream starred in the first game, and Frederick took the honors in the second. Watson showed a nice brand of ball, especially in the first game when he sank several long ones.

Full of hope and ambition, the Wolves went over the mountains on the next week-end, February 5, to try and route the Golden Bear. The Nevadans played marvelous ball in the first affair, and lost a whirlwind game because Lady Luck frowned on them repeatedly. The Wolves were slow in starting, and, though Cal lead all the way, the Pack was after her in full cry until the very end. Watson played a whale of a game, and astonished the audience on several occasions by looping them through from the center of the court. California was extended just about as far in this game as she was in any game this season, and it might be remarked in passing that the Blue and Gold copped the Pacific Coast Conference title in very decisive fashion. In the second game, the Wolves were clearly exhausted from the fast playing they had done the night before, and the Cal men had things their own way, 39-10. The teams were not as uneven in their floor work as the score might indicate. The count would have been closer but for the fact that Nevada had miserable luck with her shooting.

One week later the Nevadans again went over the Sierras, and this time they mauled the Stanford Cardinals into submission in both games. Nevada took the lead in the beginning of the first game when Frederick and Watson each tossed a long one, and from that point until the final whistle of the final game, the red-shirts were vainly striving to get Nevada's dust from their eyes so that they could see the ball. In other words, the Wolves were never headed.

Stanford, in the first game, substituted some men after the Silver and Blue had gotten a five-point lead, and things livened up from then on. Nevada was four points ahead at the half. In the second half they began like a whirlwind and caged four baskets right away. Then they tired, and Stanford made a vain attempt to even things before the final whistle. The early lead of the Wolves was too much to overcome and the score was 24-17 in Nevada's favor. The game on the next night was not as spectacular as the previous one—both teams shooting from close under the basket and guarding very closely. Nevada ran up an early lead, and was ahead 14-1 at half time. Stanford picked up in the second part of the game, but their rally didn't begin soon enough or last long enough, and the score was 21-17. Monk Frederick did some astonishingly fine dribbling, and possibly his playing would stand out more than that of any other, but each man on the team played splendid ball.

BAILEY

Too confident, perhaps, that they would win, the Nevadans dropped two close and hectic games to the league leading St. Mary's quintet on the week-end after the Stanford game. In the first game, the Wolves had an early lead and at one time were ten points to the good. It looked for a time as if it would be a walk-away for the Silver and Blue, but a single St. Mary-ite, one Lawless, ran amuck and began putting them through in every way, shape and form; and he finally put in enough to make a final score of 28-25. In the last five minutes, after St. Mary's had evened the score by the tremendous playing of Lawless, the lead changed hands no less than three times. The crowd was nearly frantic. For the fans, those last five minutes were the most thrilling of the whole season.

Tighter ball was played in the second game—each team being afraid of opening up. At the end of the game the score was at 14-14, and an extra period was needed. Nevada added a foul shot, but St. Mary's rang up two field goals and thereby took the contest 18-15. If the last five minutes of the night before had been the most thrilling, this extra five minutes were certainly the hardest played of any minutes on the home court this season. This win gave St. Mary's full possession of the Far Western Conference title.

LAWSON

CONNELLY

Disheartened by the double loss to St. Mary's, the Wolves fell prey to the strong team from Fresno State Teachers' College in the final game of the season just a week later. The Fresno men were a veteran outfit, and the peculiar waiting game that they had seemed to get the Nevadans' goat. The games were uninteresting from the spectators' point of view, and doubly so since the home team was being trounced. The scores were 28-14, and 34-18—both sets in favor of Fresno.

Such is the history of the 1926 season. It had its high spots, and it had its low ones. It was a good team, and the men on it deserve the thanks of the Student Body for the way they fought to uphold the Silver and Blue when that Student Body didn't seem to care enough whether they won or lost to turn out in full strength for all the games. This season should go to show that it takes more than players and a coach to make a team. It takes support. Team and students—may they work together in better shape next year.

THE Freshman basketball team, coached by "Buck" Shaw, head football coach, had a very successful season this year. Out of the squad of twenty-five men, a fast passing, well-balanced team was chosen to wear the Silver and Blue of Nevada. Ten men from this squad were given suits. They were: Louis Lombardi, Eddie Ducker, Homer Raycraft, Jack Leavitt, Milton Taylor, as the first team, and McQuillan, Moon, Smith, Ford, and Copren as the second team.

Louis Lombardi, a star at Reno High School last year, was elected captain. Fast on offense and a stone wall on defense, he was by far the best running guard on the squad. Homer "Osk" Raycraft of Gardnerville was the standing guard. He saved the team on more than one occasion by his fine guarding. When his turn came he was always ready to do his best. Ducker, a mainstay on the Carson team last year, was one of the best shots on the team. Whenever a basket was needed in a close game, he could always be expected to come through with his share. From Los Angeles came Leavitt, the tall center. Leavitt was always in the thick of the fight. In the front line of defense, he presented an impassable obstacle to the opposing team. Taylor, a man from California, at forward, completed the first team. A tall, lanky man, he was very valuable on the tip-off and under the basket, besides being a fair basket shot.

ORGANIZATION BASKETBALL

SIGMA NU won the inter-fraternity basketball championship by defeating all entrants. As has been the custom in previous years, the inter-fraternity council offered a large silver cup for the winner. The bracket system was used in arranging the games. The results of the individual games were:

TRACK

TRACK is becoming more and more important at Nevada each year. The past season proved to the coaches and athletes that track was being put back on its former basis for all time. By developing old material and adding several capable freshmen to the squad, "Doc" Martie and "Buck" Shaw intend to make this a banner season.

Last spring when "Doc" called for track material, there were five freshmen among the many who responded that proved their worth as track men. Three of them, Watson, Clover, and Cantlon, made their letters, and the other two, although not making the coveted "N", showed real qualities and should do well this season.

Last spring, before record-breaking crowds, the Nevada stars twice showed some real fight. The first meet with the Modesto Junior College resulted in a victory, but they tasted defeat at the hands of the famous Olympic Club. The Nevadans managed to roll up a good score against the club stars, but not enough to win.

This year the track schedule provides for three meets. One with the Davis Aggies, another with the Olympic Club, and a five-cornered conference meet. This will be the first meet held by the Far West Conference and competition will be very strong. However, the two previous meets should shape the Wolf tracksters into good condition so that they can place among the first three for conference honors.

CAPTAIN DECKER

PERL DECKER, who captained the 1925 Track Squad through a successful season, is a cinder veteran at Nevada. He has four years of Varsity Track to his credit. Decker was a distance man, and could always be counted on for points in the two-mile run.

CAPTAIN-ELECT NESBIT

NESBIT came to Nevada with a brilliant high school record, and has been a letter man in Track for three seasons. He is one of the fastest sprinters on the coast, and holds two Nevada records—in the hundred and the two-twenty.

THE four classes assembled on Mackay Field on the fourth of April to display their track abilities. On a heavy track and in a cold wind the freshmen defeated their nearest competitors, the sophomores, by only two points. Carlsen for the seniors and Nesbit of the juniors were high point men, each taking two first places.

ORGANIZATION BASEBALL

Cup for 1925 Won by Lincoln Hall

BECAUSE the college year closes so early in the spring it has been impossible to make baseball a major sport. For the past three seasons, however, organization baseball has been gradually progressing until the last season, when it assumed varsity proportions. A schedule is arranged so that each team plays each other entrant, and the percentage system is used in determining the winner. There were ten teams, eight fraternities, Lincoln Hall, and the Independents entered in the spring season of 1925. Although it was started in zero weather, the tournament last year was hailed as the best ever.

Every afternoon for over a month there were games being played on Mackay Field, and toward the end of the season the interest became very keen. Lincoln Hall, Sigma Nu's, and the Independents were all holding high percentages and the outcome was doubtful. When the Independents played the Lincoln Hall men, it left only two teams in the running. For the championship the Lincoln Hallers had to meet the Sigma Nu's, and in a thrilling battle between pitchers the dormitory men won the silver cup by defeating the fraters 12 to 3. Flynn, Patterson and Christensen pitching for Lincoln Hall outclassed their opponents, Gillberg, Clinch and Broyles of the Greeks holding them down to three runs.

The spirit shown in this short season of baseball was claimed by upperclassmen and faculty to have been the best ever shown on the Nevada campus. There were no forfeitures and no mixed battles, as had been the usual custom. From the number of players from the various organizations it would have been possible to have picked a varsity team. Some of the pitchers showed professional form, and toward the end of the season one could see a good brand of ball being played every afternoon.

VARSITY TENNIS

TENNIS

TENNIS was ushered in last spring by the interclass tournament. Reversing the general opinion that the upperclasses reign supreme in sport, the Frosh class of '28 won hands down. The only loss suffered by the '28 was in the women's singles, which was won by Elma Orr, a senior.

Next in the way of competition came the Reno Tennis Club. The University squad proved too experienced for the town club and had little trouble in winning the series of matches. Ruel Stickney, playing for the University, won the final and deciding match from C. T. Rady. Close to follow was the inter-frat tournament. Although the outcome was doubtful till almost the end, the Sigma Phi Sigma team, composed of Blum and Way, finally defeated the Sigma Nu team of Wright and Skeen in the finals.

Early in April, the Frosh journeyed to Carson, where the first severe setback of the season was suffered. The final score was 3-2. These preliminary matches all had their effect in rounding the squad into shape for the climax of the season, when Sacramento Junior College sent a team to play the University about the middle of April. The representatives of the University were: Singles, Stickney, Sherwin, Blum, Eagle, Nenzel, and Skeen. Doubles, Stickny and Skeen, Sherwin and Blum, and Eagle and Nenzel. With the reputation of being a clever aggregation behind them, a close outcome was anticipated, and none who saw the matches were disap- the University emerged on the long end of a 5-4 score. This triumph only pointed pointed in this respect. Victory was doubtful until the last game of the last set, but more plainly to the value of the instruction and interest, received from "Doc" Martie.

The fall semester opened with a call for varsity tennis and a group of about twenty showed up. After some practice the team chosen to represent the University was "Sub" Green in singles and Blum and Sherwin in doubles. The women's team consisted of Elma Orr, singles, and Elsie Mitchel and Elma Orr in the doubles. Blum and May Mills played the mixed doubles.

The first tournament, the Reno open invitational, was won by the University. The singles, doubles and mixed doubles were won. However, the women were not quite so fortunate, losing their last chance in the semi-finals.

Early in October the open state tournament was held. The University lost to ranking players from the Pacific coast, but only after pressing the champions to show their most brilliant pace. The University reached the semi-finals in both singles and doubles, and the finals in mixed doubles. The season closed with a round robin tournament for official ranking on the campus. At present Sherwin heads the list in singles and Sherwin and Blum are on the top round of the ladder in the doubles. Tentative arrangements have been made to play the following schools this spring semester: College of Pacific, Sacramento Junior College, Davis Aggies, Fresno, and the Modesto Junior College.

ASSUMING the guidance of all women on Nevada's campus, the Associated Women Students of Nevada, composed of all women registered in the university, begins its work early in the summer and carries it through the school year in co-operation with A. S. U. N. and the Faculty.

Summer activity consists in bringing future freshman women in contact with upperclass women who will guide them through the bewildering days of registration. This "Big Sister" movement has helped to create a spirit of good fellowship and friendship on our campus.

The first meeting in September primarily welcomes new women and instructs them in the campus traditions and ideals.

In addition to campus co-operation, the association is affiliated with the Nevada Conference of Women's Clubs. Thirty-three delegates, elected from the various classes, attended the federation conference held this year in Reno. At this time the association gave an informal tea at Manzanita Hall in honor of the visiting delegates of the club.

Besides fostering a $25.00 scholarship each year, in 1923 A. W. S. established Cap and Scroll, a women's honor society recognizing those who through activities have shown their power of helpful leadership. The offices a member of A. W. S. may hold are limited by the point system in order to regulate and encourage development of leadership and initiative. This is done by specification of points for each office open to women.

A. W. S. was represented this year in the Home-Coming Day parade with a float.

The organization has carried on the distribution of A. S. U. N. song books as well as fostering the fund for equipping a cozy restroom to be maintained by the group.

Frances Humphrey represented Nevada at the Mid-Western and Western Conference of Associated Women Students held in Eugene, Oregon, last April. The next conference will be held in Los Angeles in April, 1926. The president-elect will act as Nevada's delegate.

IN addition to furthering interest in all interclass athletics and gymnastics, the Women's Athletic Association is one of our greatest creators of Nevada spirit, friendliness and pep. Since re-organization in 1922, when it became nationally affiliated with the Women's Athletic Association, the association has been a member of the Athletic Conference of American College Women. At the convention held last spring at Southern Branch of the University of California, to which Evalyn Nelson and May Cupples were sent as delegates, Nevada was elected to act as recording secretary for the next annual conference meeting to be held at Washington State College, Pullman, Washington, in April, 1926.

Beginning with 1925, W. A. A. has been given charge of the girls' share in the State High School Tournament, held in March of each year at the University. At this time money is raised for the annual scholarship of $100 given at commencement time to the most worthy girl interested and active in athletics and sports. To help earn this scholarship, W. A. A. members gave two cooked food sales during the fall semester.

The national rulings prohibiting intercollegiate contests have inspired greater interest in inter-class games, and Nevada has an added incentive for inter-class sports in the "mythical varsity" teams chosen at the close of each sport's season. The "varsities" are composed of the best members participating in each sport, announcements being made at banquets and parties given at the conclusion of each season. Basketball's "mythical varsity" is considered the highest honor, and those chosen are announced at a banquet given February 26.

News-letters from other colleges belonging to the A. C. A. C. W. have kept W. A. A. informed as to their activities and have inspired it to strive for improvement in its organization.

AWARDS

On Mackay Day, Nevada's day of days, the awards of W. A. A. are announced. This year a fifth award has been added, consisting in the right to purchase a blanket for which a large monogram is given to women having 1600 points. One hundred points entitle one to a membership certificate, the next award being a blue monogram, won with 600 points. Upperclass women strive for a white sweater, earned with 1000 points; and with 1200 points the additional honor of a numeral is gained.

WOMEN'S SPORTS

SOCCER

Soccer opened the season of sports September first under the management of Margaret Browning, '28. With a large turn-out in each class, competition for the championship was keen, the seniors coming out victors.

HOCKEY

Following directly after soccer, practice for hockey opened October 13. With Tillie Dotta, '27, in charge, fifty-six girls trained for the finals. The senior team members were again champions, defeating each class team by a large score.

VOLLEY BALL

Beginning November 20 under the management of Theo Olmstead, '28, the season of volley ball opened. After three weeks of practice and running off of final games, the freshmen were declared champions.

INTER-CLASS HOCKEY

BASKET BALL

Basketball proves to be the most popular sport of all. Practice began January and under the management of Eva Adams, '28, and Therese Pasquale, '27, interclass competition was very keen.

TENNIS

As a newly awakening sport, tennis is becoming more popular on the campus. Elsie Mitchell, '27, will be manager for this semester.

TRACK

With a good turn-out last year, track has taken its place among the class sports. The meet this spring will be in charge of Vincent Alexander, '27, who promises to establish some records.

BASEBALL

Baseball, though the last on the sport's program, is not least. Gertrude Coddington, '27, manager for this season, will again use the outdoor rules with nine players, and after a short period of practice, keen class competition is expected.

DANCING

Included last year in the list of sports, dancing was found to be desired and has earned its place for this season. Under the direction of Miss Elsie Sameth with Mildred Leavitt, '26, as manager, athletes will acquire grace as well as strength and power.

HIKES

Hikes are another sport which proved worthy last year, and under Isabel Loring, '28, and Mae Bernasconi, '28, "moonlight steak parties," "treasure hunts," and other novel outings will be enjoyed.

RIFLE

Rifle has taken its place among those at the head of sports this year, and under the management of Gilberta Turner matches have been arrangd with other colleges.

PUBLICATIONS BOARD

FOR the efficient manner in which the campus publications are now managed much credit is due the Publications Board, a managing body that was organized over two years ago, and whose degree of success is evident in the quality of work that now appears.

The "Board" is composed of the vice-president of the Student Body, chairman; the editors and business managers of the Sagebrush, Artemisia, and Desert Wolf; and two members elected at large. Its chief purpose is to choose students for the two directing positions on each publication that are best qualified by experience and ability. Previously the editor and business managers were elected by popular vote, which method did not always insure that the most capable person had been chosen. To those who have been selected for the head positions the "Board" is open to consultation, and is now recognized as a distinct step forward in campus management.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA
ALUMNI NEWS

H. HUGHES, PRESIDENT

THE ALUMNI NEWS

CHRIS SHEERIN.....Editor
HAROLD HUGHES.....President of the Alumni Association

THE University of Nevada Alumni News made its initial appearance on January 28th. It is the first regular publication of the Alumni Association. At the present time it is on an irregular basis, appearing "every little while," but it is planned to later publish it quarterly or monthly, finances permitting.

The "News" was mailed to every graduate whose address was available, but the mailing list is not complete, as the addresses of many are unknown. Every alumnus was asked to supply the names and addresses of those who were known to have been overlooked.

It is hoped that every graduate and former student will become a subscriber by joining the Alumni Association. There are many who have overlooked this in the past and who are now associating themselves with the organization. This increase shows an added interest in "The Hill."

The policy of the "News" will be to disseminate the story of the constant growth of the University of Nevada, together with items of interest of former classmates. It is the official organ of the Alumni Association, and as such sponsors all things devoted to the welfare and development of the University of Nevada.

EARLY MORNING DRIVE ENDS IN JAIL FOR 5

Four young men spent four hours in jail yesterday morning when police declared they were found driving an automobile across sidewalks and lawns at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

After a severe reprimand and warning they were released by Chief of Police Kirkley.

The police blotter bore the names of Elmer Dakinson, 18, Joel Grayson, 21, Burney Busleyer, 22, and W. H. Hilbering, 21.

JUST BECAUSE RAY MISENER IS BRANDED, THAT DOES NOT MEAN THAT HE IS FOREMAN OF THE BAR N RANCH. IT IS RUMORED THAT "BAR N" STANDS FOR "BAR NONE."

Appreciation to Advertisers

IT is the content of the following pages of this book that has made its publication possible. The University of Nevada cannot be too thankful for the staunch support that is given it by the business men of Nevada. The advertisements in this volume are representative of the splendid spirit that these business houses have toward the University. To forget these men is to forget your best friends. Read their ads. Patronize them.

Deserted Wolf

The Deserted Wolf is a quarterly—also a magazine. It contains re-printed jokes and other dry stories. The huge collection of original wit found within its pages was the result of nightly gatherings of the staff, matching wits, deas, and pennies. An original joke finally resulted. This bit of humor was carefully guarded in a vault until publication. It is still on file in the Nevada Historical Society as a curio. The Editor is deserving of much sympathy, as he laughed himself sick many times while reading this rare (in more ways than one) bit.

Ever Hearing Ears

"The Ears," as they are commonly called, is the oldest organization on the Hill. People with double-jointed ears are the only ones eligible to membership in this club. They can thus hear things both going and coming. It is a rule of this organization that everything heard must be kept secret—unless a willing listener can be found. It is planned to erect a broadcasting station to facilitate the work of the organization. Prominent Ears are: Douglas Castle, Phil Weber, and Bruce Brizard. All sorority women automatically receive membership after their first Campus dance.

Well Appointed Equipment—Clean and Inviting

Affords a most interesting and instructive trip to the capitol of Nevada and the famous Comstock lode which has and still is producing millions of the nation's wealth.

It would be impossible to visualize a more diversified scenic trip than that presented in the few hours' ride from Reno to Virginia City.

Through picturesque valleys, surrounded by majestic mountains, thence up in a winding course around the heights mastered by engineering skill, with glorious mountain scenery as a relief to the barren mineralized mountains traversed—a composite of scenic wonders is unfolded.

The State Pententiary at Carson City, the Indian Industrial School at Stewart, and the towns of Minden and Gardnerville in Carson Valley furnish pleasant divertisement.

Attractive round-trip fares are in effect to points on this line.

An Appreciation:

FIRST, let us pause a moment to say a word of appreciation to the two young men in whom the Student Body reposed its confidence of naming them to perform the responsible task of getting out the Artemisia for 1926. We congratulate the Student Body in the choice of Harold Coffin and Russell Coleman as editor and business manager respectively. In all the years of our experience in publishing the Artemisia never have we worked with two boys whose innate ability for the task assigned was any more pronounced than that found in Harold and Russell. You have a beautiful book this year. It represents the highest type of ability in its editorial and business management. As to its typographical appearance, we present it as a gem in the Library of the Classics. For many years we have given several months to this work; we have let nothing stay us in our efforts to present a book which Old Nevada could place alongside the efforts of Colleges many times her size, firm in the confidence that the high ideals and traditions of her school were aptly presented in the character of her publication. May we continue this task in the years to come; may we, far into the future, work hand in hand with the boys and girls of Nevada in our combined efforts to keep the Artemisia a Classic in the Art Preservative of All the Arts.

Faculty

Taking the motto, "They Shall Not Pass," University of Nevada faculty members have recently organized. Any student will readily admit that this is one of the most powerful organizations on the Hill.

The faculty club is very exclusive and their gatherings are sceret, although they have been known to invite certain prominent members of the student body to some of their committee meetings.

It is said that membership in this group also entitles one to a bid to Fie Kappa Fie and the Heels. Certain faculty members have recently been mentiond in "Who's New?", "The U. of N. Sagebrush," and other prominent pamphlets.

Campus Players

Campus Players is one of Nevada's best eating clubs. The food is provided from the widely advertised curtain fund.

The directreth of thith crowd of bad actorth ith the famouth thcreen thtar, Mith Luethal Authtin.

Miss Austin has also done commendable work on the stage—in Stewart Hall.

As has been previously announced, Campus Players disclaims any connection with the University Band.

Appreciation

To everyone who has helped us in the preparation of the 1926 Artemisia, the staff offers a sincere "thank you."

Those who were intrusted with Artemisia contracts were always ready to co-operate with us. The Reno Printing Company, The Commercial Art & Engraving Company, The Riverside Studio, and The Nevada Photo Service have served us well.

We are grateful to Stanley Misner for his art portrait drawings; to the San Francisco Bulletin, who gave us several football action pictures; and to George Cann for permission to reproduce from his copyrighted photograph of the Mackay field.

The feature of the 1926 Artemisia—the Campus paintings—were from the brush of Sybil Huntington. The University is greatly indebted to Mrs. Huntington for these paintings, which were made especially for the Artemisia.
